FPMRS Welcomes the European Urogynaecological Association

The European Urogynaecological Association (EUGA) has selected Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery (FPMRS) as its official journal, allowing EUGA members to access FPMRS content online. We extend our warmest welcome to EUGA and all EUGA members! We offer a special welcome to the EUGA Executive Committee who finalized this collaboration: Athanasiou Stavros (President), Stefano Salvatore (Past-President), Maurizio Serati (Vice-President), Barry O’Reilly (Treasurer), and Reynaud de Tayrac.

Founded in 2005, EUGA was created to recognize a European network of urogynecologists, allowing the opportunity for discussion and consultation amongst its members. The objectives of EUGA include facilitating the study and analysis of all aspects of urinary tract and pelvic floor dysfunction and to spread knowledge about related issues among specialists. EUGA has grown to include urogynecologists all across Europe, supported through regular meetings. These objectives are advanced with the selection of Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery as the official journal of EUGA, through an agreement with the American Urogynecologic Society (AUGS), which owns the journal.

As Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery continues to connect with a growing international audience, we look forward to the contributions of EUGA members. The needs of women affected by pelvic floor disorders are a global concern and there is much to be learned from sharing perspectives and experiences by urogynecologists across the world. The editorial team at Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery looks forward to working with members of the EUGA Publication Committee, including Ilias Giarenis (UK), Ruwan Fernando (UK), Rosa Maria Laterza (Austria), Anna Padora (Israel), Konstantinos Pantazis (Greece), Angelo Rantell (UK), and Marco Torella (Italy). The Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery International Editorial Board will include two EUGA members who will join the annual FPMRS Editorial Board meeting in October 2020.

Readers of Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery look forward to getting to know EUGA members better through shared scientific endeavors, both in publications and through meetings (whether virtual or in person). It is our sincere hope that the work of Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery will effectively disseminate scientific advances and perspectives to benefit the many women in our world whose lives are affected by pelvic floor disorders. Please be sure to follow Female Pelvic Medicine & Reconstructive Surgery on Twitter at @FPMRSJournal and catch our monthly tweetorials!

With all best wishes,

Linda Brubaker, MD
Editor-in-Chief, FPMRS
The Official Journal of AUGS
Editor@FPMRS.net