Program Offer: A 3 year fellowship for gynecologists and 2 years for urologists. Our program combines the resources of two established training institutions, University Hospitals Case Medical Center and Metro Health Medical Center, to offer trainees exposure to the breadth and depth of FPMRS, including robotics, vaginal and abdominal surgery, single port laparoscopy, novel therapies, NIH and industry funded research and outstanding clinical experiences. All fellows have a full 12 months of dedicated research time as well as significant opportunities to pursue personal research interests. The program faculty includes 3 fellowship trained urogynecologists, 1 fellowship trained female urologist and one fellowship trained minimally invasive surgeon between the two clinical locations. Off-service rotations will add depth to the educational experience and include colorectal surgery. Fellows are well trained to become productive and successful academicians. (Application Process: ERAS)

Other Degrees Offered: Masters of Science in Clinical Research and other advance degree opportunities through Case Western Reserve University.

Requirements: Completion of an ABOG or ABU accredited residency program; ABOG or ABU certification or eligible for certification

Program Length: Urologist—2 years, Gynecologist—3 years
